

Xu Wen is Professor of linguistics, and the former Dean of College of International Studies at Southwest University, Chongqing, China, where he lectures on semantics, cognitive linguistics, and sociolinguistics. His major research interests include cognitive linguistics, semantics, pragmatics, discourse analysis, syntax-semantics interface, cultural cognitive linguistics, second and foreign language education, and cognitive translation studies. His publications include The Routledge Handbook of Cognitive Linguistics, COVID-19: Metaphor and Metonymy across Languages and Cultures, and a great number of volumes and papers. He is the editor of the journal Cognitive Linguistic Studies, and Asian-Pacific Journal of Second and Foreign Language Education, and the book series co-editor of Bloomsbury Studies in Language and Cognition. He has organized the International Forum on Cognitive Linguistics since 2011. Xu Wen is President of China Cognitive Translation Society, and the vice president of China Cognitive Linguistics Association, and China Pragmatics Association. E-mail: xuwen@swu.edu.cn.

